What our client said:

I approached several companies when looking to create a website for our dental practice. I chose Wellsites because they were extremely professional, competitive in price and their thorough quote gave me confidence of no hidden extras. I am thrilled with my website and cannot speak more highly of all of the staff I have worked with at Wellsites. I was so impressed with their designer that I had her revamp my logo and practice branding and am now using them to set up our next website. I value integrity in my business relationships and am delighted to have this association with Wellsites.

EVERY CHILD DESERVES THE OPPORTUNITY TO REACH THEIR FULL POTENTIAL

A professional opinion can make the difference between a successful, well-adjusted child and one who fails to thrive at school, in social situations and later on as an adult.

While parents are usually the best placed to recognise a problem when it arises, it isn't always a simple thing to identify what is a true problem and what a child might grow out of.

Ask yourself three questions:

1. What is the harm in getting a second opinion?
2. How distressed is my child by the concerns?
3. How much do the concerns interfere with their ability to get along with others at home or at school, being able to concentrate on their school work?

We teach our children to ask for help if they need it. The same applies to adults - if you are unsure, err on the side of caution, and seek professional help.

Do any of these scenarios apply to your child:

- Delayed speech and language skills
- Consistent reluctance to do their homework
- Regularly forgetting to hand in work and leaving projects to the last minute
- They have a glazed look when you are asking them a question
- He/she gets aggressive when angry, upset or overly excited
- A significant drop in their grades
- A sudden change in appetite and sleeping habits
- Extreme mood swings - your child is happy one minute and upset the next
- Trouble developing and maintaining friendships
- Your child gets into trouble a lot at school
- Difficulty staying on tasks and easily distracted
- Appears defiant and does not always follow your requests
- Your child gets easily upset, or clings to you when you are around new places
- He/she lacks the confidence to try new things
- Your child does not cope well when things are out of routine
- Your child is going to be one of the youngest kids in their class when they start school

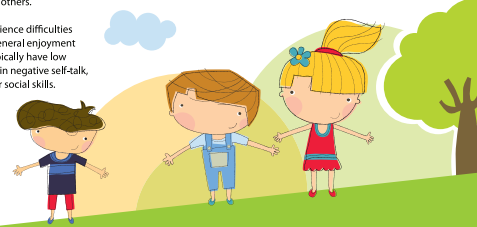

If you ticked any of the above, now is the time to see a professional to determine how you can help your child overcome their anxieties or behavioural problems.

There is clear evidence that gaps in children's functioning and achievement develop early and are significant by the time they reach school. These children then start school lacking the cognitive, non-cognitive and social skills needed for success in the school environment. This in turn can lead to academic and occupational problems.

Early intervention for children is extremely important and the earlier a problem is addressed, the greater the success rate.

- Children starting school not yet ready to learn tend to do less well in school, which can lead to a variety of social and behavioural problems. In the extreme these include teenage pregnancy, criminal activities, and mental health problems.
- Undiagnosed learning and/or behavioural difficulties have far reaching consequences from early adolescence to adulthood. What starts with a lack of motivation to learn goes on to withdrawal from parents and angry outbursts. As adults they won't always seem to understand consequences or the results of their actions, often hurting themselves or others.
- Anxious children who are not treated, experience difficulties with school performance, friendships and general enjoyment of life as their fears hold them back. They typically have low self-esteem, trouble being assertive, engage in negative self-talk, are hypersensitive to criticism and have poor social skills.

Fortunately, it doesn't have to be like this.

A psychologist can help confirm or dispel any concerns you have about your child and can develop a treatment plan to help overcome any difficulties he/she may be experiencing giving your child the best possible start in life.

CALL 0425 269 658 TODAY FOR A FREE PHONE CONSULTATION

A two hour face-to-face consultation is all that it takes to give you peace of mind.

Making an appointment to see a psychologist is the first, simple step on the road to recovery and a happy, well adjusted child.

There is no need for a doctor's referral. If you are claiming through Medicare you will need to speak to your GP or paediatrician first.

Time poor or working full time? We can help you - we will travel to your child's preschool, kindergarten and school for appointments.
